Introduction.

In thus isolating Friends from the the largest body of professing Christians, the compiler ~~is~~ has been actuated by no narrow or sectarian bias. Since, however, it would be a stupendous task to ~~list~~ make a general list of all outstanding Christians, he has attempted the less ambitious ~~task~~ role of selecting members of the Society of Friends, called Quakers, who, whether in religion, science, art or industry, have made ~~an~~ outstanding contribution to life. ~~Beyond~~ Farther than this, he has included names of some, who having fallen away from first principles, ~~and~~ have even made shipwreck of faith. Also, it has seemed right ~~also~~ to include ~~some~~ others who appear to have been Friends at heart, ~~though~~ by ~~accident~~ ~~it~~ ~~it~~ never became members.

The difficulty of decision as to whom to include, and whom to omit, has been very great. Some other compiler, with a different setting and outlook, would undoubtedly have produced a very different copy.
